Student Investor Challenge

>> How does it work?

Your team, consisting of four students, will have 2 portfolios of virtual money to invest in the stock market.

By reviewing and analysing market information, you can select shares and make judgements of when to buy and sell in order to maximise profit. You'll also be given tips along the way and how you can manage your shares for success.

With share prices provided by Bloomberg, a provider of high-quality financial data, news and analytics, the Student Investor Challenge is the most realistic share trading competition available.

>> How do I play?

The competition is played online at studentinvestor.org and a national league table allows you to track your progress against others at your school or college as well as from teams across the world.

>> How do I register?

It is COMPLETELY FREE to register for the challenge and each school or college can enter as many teams as they wish.

Only tutors are allowed to register teams in the competition, so please speak to your tutor if you are interested in participating, they can register online at studentinvestor.org

On registering, teams can take advantage of the practice period, where you are able to gain experience of trading until the start of the competition when all the portfolios will be set back to £100,000.

Registration closes 16 November 2018.

>> What are the rules?

The competition runs from October to February. Teams of four will be given 2 portfolios of virtual money to trade, with the best performing teams at the end of the trading challenge competing against each other in a four week online Stock Predictor challenge. The final eight winning teams will then take part in a trading challenge and make a presentation to industry experts at the final.
